Join us for an exclusive Reader Day at the home of Lewis & Wood to see first-hand how wallpaper and fabric are created and discover how to use colour and pattern for your own beautiful interiors

The Woodchester Mill studio and showroom is the perfect place to fire your creativity

Browse through the Lewis & Wood collections to inspire your own schemes

Famous for its original and witty designs, Lewis & Wood's stunning Woodchester Mill studio and showroom will be the venue for a day of interior design inspiration, offering the chance to learn hands-on how fabric and wallpaper are designed and produced.

Managing Director Stephen Lewis established the company more than 15 years ago with the successful interior designer Joanna Wood. Since then the company has built on its reputation and is now highly regarded for nurturing new design talent and developing wide-width wallpaper and big prints on natural fibres. Stephen and Creative Director Magdalen Jebb will host the event, during which readers can learn about the best use of colour and texture from some of the most established names in design.

Georgina Von Etdorf will provide inspiration on how to create an uplifting mood through the use of colour and pattern, and will offer individual advice to readers on how best to evolve their own interiors.

Jenny Stringer will talk you through how fabric is created from first drawing to printing. There will be an opportunity to try the art of block printing under Jenny's expert supervision, so do bring an apron!

And The Guardian's food and drink columnist, Matthew Fort, will be preparing a delicious, Cotswold-inspired lunch.

There will also be plenty of time to browse the Lewis & Wood shop and see the entire range of fabrics and wallpapers, with the opportunity to buy seconds, overstocks and discontinued lines at very reasonable prices. As well as in-house decorator Stuart Lewis and soft furnishings specialist Lesley Duro offering their expertise, a member of The English Home team will also be on hand to meet and greet you all. Places are limited so be sure to book early.
